Atlanta Public Schools Are Facing Shutdown

ALL INDICATIONS
POINT TO CLOSING
ON SEPTEMBER 1Fruitless Conferences Are Held by Joint Committee From Education
Board of Council.$800,000 IS NEEDED
TO PREVENT CLOSINGAfter All Possible Cuts in Expenditures Are Made,
Only $125,000 Will Be Available for System.Failure of efforts to find additional money for school support will be reported to the board of education in regular session today by W. W.
Gaines and W. C. Slate, school members of the joint committee from the board and council finance committee which adjourned Monday after two days of unsuccessful effort to cut enough appropriations out of both school and council budgets to finance the system through September and October.The result of the conference was that less than $35,000 was found subject to cut from the school budget and less than $90,000 for school purposes out of total possible cuts of less than $200,000 from the council budget.Estimates Are Upset.
Original estimates that $300,000
could be cut from the council budget by abandoning all public improvements were upset when City Comptroller B. Graham West supplied the joint committee with records showing that $100,000 of the sum which it was intended to salvage had been spent.
Many improvements are already in course of construction and many would have to be left half-finished.Of the $200,000, the finance committee will have to take $110,000 to meet the water rate reduction which goes into effect June 1, as a result of adoption by council last Monday and approval by Mayor Walter A. Sims Saturday.The school board already had adopted a budget providing for closing September 1. It had sent an appeal to council to provide $334,911 more to finance September and October operations, proposing to bor-

DRUID HILLS CLUB
PLANS NEW HOMEPending Erection, Temporary Structures Will Be Completed by June 1,
Dr. Hughes Announces.Temporary buildings to house activities of the Druid Hills Golf club, whose clubhouse was destroyed by fire last week, will be completed by June 1, Dr. Claude N. Hughes, chairman of the club's rebuilding committee, announced Monday. Dr. Hughes said a new permanent building would be erected this year.Among the temporary structures will be one 30x50 feet to house lockers and showers for men golfers. A business office 15x15 feet will form another. Dressing rooms will be immediately built near the swimming pool for women and children.Saved All Records.
Secretary C. R. Gaines rescued all records of the club from the fire, it was stated, those in the safe at the time flames enveloped the clubhouse being found undamaged later. Secretary Gaines carried from the burning building many of its most valuable records.The club will not attempt to reopen the restaurant until the permanent building is completed, but the food and drink concession will be granted to someone else to be operated privately for convenience of members and guests until that time. The concessionaire will erect whatever building he considers necessary for the purpose.
No accommodations for dancing or other social activity is to be provided pending erection of the permanent building, Dr. Hughes said.

ALBERTA REVERTS
TO OLD-TIME BAR;
WAS DRY 8 YEARSCalgary, May 12.—After eight years of alcoholic dryness, the province of Alberta woke up wet today.
Last November the voters of the province decided to substitute government sale of liquor for prohibition which was decreed by the people in 1915 and became effective the following year. The act adopted in November was proclaimed to be effective
today.UNDERWOOD PLANS TO FORCE ISSUE
ON KLAN AT MEETThreatens To Force Fight to Floor of Democratic Convention To Win
Anti-Klan Plank.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.

Washington, May 12.—Prospects of a bitter wrangle over the Ku Klux Klan issue at the democratic national convention were made certain by the announcement Monday that managers for Senator Oscar Underwood will force a vote on an anti-klan platform plank.Through his manager, C. C. Carlin, Senator Underwood said: "The Ku Klux Klan is an invisible government operating in violation of the constitution of the United States and it is the duty of the democratic party in convention to declare against this organization and to embody that declaration in its platform."To Insist on Vote.
Carlin said that when Governor Brandon, of Alabama, places Underwood in nomination, he will announce to the convention the intention of asking for a vote on the klan question, and should his proposal be voted down there, a minority report will be made to the convention and a vote will be insisted upon."It is our intention," Carlin explained, "to bring this issue before the convention because we believe it is a question which the democratic party cannot afford to ignore. The situation now is exactly the same as it was when the know-nothing movement was at its height in the fifties.
We propose that the democratic party
now, as it did in the famous convention of 1856, go on record against this movement. If they vote us down in the resolutions committee, we will carry the fight to the floor. We will not quit without a vote on it."Ed McCoo Is Favored.
Ed McCoo's victory in the Indiana fight for the republican gubernatorial nomination last week revealed the strength of the klan in this doubtful state and impressed upon leaders in both parties the strength which the order will have in uncertain territory next fall. It is one of the incidents which will make this question acute at both conventions.

In the democratic party presiden-

"Well, for several days I've been a coal miner... White collars are nice, but I hate to think of all the interesting people I've evidently been missing because of 'em."

WORKERS' BUDDY BARES DISCOVERY

When Whiting Williams, five years ago, was vice-president of a steel company in Cleveland, he did something which hundreds of other managers have always wanted to do. He said good-bye to his desk, to his friends and his family, put on a suit of old clothes, and disappeared for months.

Then he turned up in New York City with one of the most extraordinary diaries ever written. He had not been loafing or tramping. He had been working as a common laborer in railroad yards, steel mills and coal mines.

His capital, when he began this amazing adventure, was $25. He lived on his earnings, slept on park benches when out of a job, and gained a first hand insight into the worker's life.

Whiting Williams meant to go back to his desk in Cleveland, and resume the life of a "white collar man." But he has not gone back. Magazine editors and book publishers have kept him busy writing; far-sighted presidents of great railroads and industries have enlisted his services as adviser.

A few days ago he wrote a letter to P. F. Collier & Son Company which reveals a hidden source of his unique power. He says:

"I am an owner and a regular user of

DR. ELIOT'S FIVE-FOOT SHELF OF BOOKS

"I am thankful that somebody has taken the best of the world's literature and made it so compact that I can have it always handy at my elbow. I have in mind one line of thought I found in it which has been of inestimable value to me in my search (in overalls and out) for the motives and the mainstays of my fellow humans."

"The chances are I should never have found this secret if it had not been in my Five-Foot Shelf. I'll wager that almost every other owner of it could tell a similar tale, and with similar gratitude."

What do you say? Have you, too, a Five-Foot Shelf? If by any chance your home is still without it, and you have not yet discovered the world of knowledge and pleasure and inspiration that awaits you behind its covers, then there is a wonderful little free book which you must send for at once.

The name of the free book is "Fifteen Minutes a Day," and it tells how Dr. Eliot has put into his Five-Foot Shelf (also called the Harvard Classics) the essentials of a liberal education—the culture, the broad viewpoint which are the tools of success in life.

Every ambitious man and woman ought to know something about this great library—a library which will be as useful to you if you are a business man, lawyer, engineer, banker, minister or salesman, as it has been to Whiting Williams and so many thousands of other executives and students. Here is the free book, well worth reading. Just below is a coupon which will bring it to you by return mail, or by postpaid, and without any obligation.

FRENCH ELECTORS DEFEAT POINCARE

the chamber in the midst of violent denunciations of his policy and on several occasions it was only the perfect machinery of the government that prevented him from being defeated in the voting of lack of confidence.

Brinard, Poincare are mentioned prominently with Herriot as possible successors of Poincare in the premiership.

Should the socialists effect a coalition of their various schools it is practically assured that the evacuation of the Ruhr or at least a totally modified attitude on the whole reparations question will follow immediately.

That the French premier felt a growing uneasiness over the political situation at home became clear in the past few weeks when he turned a deaf ear to the diplomatic overtures of King Ferdinand and Queen Marie of Rumania, who were in Paris recently.

Wanted to Extend Pact.
The Rumanians wanted to extend the terms of their alliance with the French republic with a view to ward off the threatened Russian attack on Bessarabia.

The growing demand of the left for recognition of soviet Russia and the repudiation of the treaties with Poland, Rumania and Czechoslovakia, as constituting a direct threat to the Russian republic, caused M. Poincare to proceed warily in the matter of binding his country to further obligations in the case of a Russian attack on Rumania.

Edouard Herriot, one of the most picturesque figures of the chamber undertook on his own behalf a mission to Russia last year. His reports were received with favor in the chamber, and the government delegated him full powers to make a second trip of investigation to the land of Muscovy.

To Divide Ministries.
He is a radical socialist, while M. Brinard, formerly of the same persuasion, is identified with the unified socialist group. Should these two factions be able to agree on a coalition, there is a great likelihood that they will form the government of the country, dividing the portfolios equally between their leaders.

Reference has been made by observers on the internal political situation. It is charged that the taxation plans of the government were merely an effort to extend the military system and inaugurate a campaign for a tremendous military organization in north Africa.

Creates Joy in Germany.

Though the socialists would oppose the military exploitation of the African colonies along the lines laid down by the bloc national they will possibly adhere to the plans which provide for the building of an extensive railway net in Senegal, Timbucto and Darak and the construction of several large ports in Africa.

They, however, favor an industrial exploitation of Africa instead of development for military purposes.

There can be no doubt that the changed situation in France will be hailed with the greatest joy in Germany and will have the effect of dampening the nationalist ardor for revenge and armed retaliation.

The French elections prove that the people of that country are in agreement with the Belgian electors, who recently defeated the Theunis government when it asked a decision on closer commercial and military cooperation with France.

POINCARE PLANS TO RESIGN PLACE

Saturday exchange had closed at 16.75 to the dollar. Monday the franc stood at 17.43 to the dollar, and after the bourse had closed dropped to 17.60 in unofficial dealings. The slump, however, is not sensational in view of the situation.

Poincare Looks Worried.
Premier Poincare hurried back to Paris from his country estate Monday afternoon. He looked worried when he arrived, and refused to talk. His secretary said that so far no change had been made in the plans for Poincare to confer with Premier MacDonald in England on May 19.

Many socialists declare that the election results constitute a direct repudiation of Premier Poincare's foreign policies. This, however, is open to doubt, and there seems to be foundation for the government's claim that the swing toward the left was due largely to dissatisfaction over taxation and other internal problems.

Premier Poincare is now conferring with other leaders here, and the entire cabinet will confer with President Millerand Tuesday.

CHEQUERS MEETING
MAY BE ABANDONED.

London, May 12.—(By the Associated Press.)—Plans for the meeting of Prime Minister MacDonald with Premier Poincare, of France, at Chequers Court, May 19, will probably be abandoned as a result of the French election upset, it was intimated in official circles today.

The reverses suffered by Premier Poincare came as a surprise to the Downing street observers, who like Prime Minister MacDonald, believed that M. Poincare's return to power was a foregone conclusion.

It was stated that Mr. MacDonald's invitation was sent M. Poincare as head of the government and would hold for his successor if it were found necessary to form a new French cabinet. It is believed, however, that it would be impossible for any premier from across the channel to fulfill the Chequers Court engagement May 19 in view of the political situation that has developed.

FRENCH ELECTIONS
"LIBERAL VICTORY."

London, May 12.—In a political speech in London tonight, David Lloyd George, former British prime minister, alluded to the results in the French election as a great liberal victory—an event of great significance and deep moment, which he firmly believed would conduct to a much needed pacification of the world.

BERGER VISIONS
SOCIALISM RAMPANT.

Washington, May 12.—"Socialism is rampant in France," Representative Berger, Wisconsin, only socialist in congress, said in a cablegram of congratulations to Jean Longuet, French socialist leader, over the victory of the socialists in the French parliamentary elections.

Berger's cablegram reads as follows: "Heartiest congratulations. French socialist party which has been hit more by the war and war patriotism than any other in the civilized world except the American party, has redeemed itself. French working class is following the example set by the proletariat of Great Britain. Socialism is marching again. Long live international solidarity."

PLANS NEW HOME

The golf course, swimming pool and probably tennis courts will be the only features cared for until then.

Will Discuss Plans.

A definite plan or possibly several plans for the permanent directors will be evolved at the special meeting of the full board of directors called for 8 o'clock Thursday night in the directors' room of the Atlanta and Lowry National bank. Dr. Hughes said. The plan or plans will be submitted to the full membership for adoption. No plan yet, he said, because the interest of the directors has centered solely on providing temporary conveniences at the earliest possible time. He did say, however, that all the members with whom he had talked were determined that a club home more magnificent in every way than the one which burned should be erected without any more delay than necessary.

"We believe such a building can be erected without any special assessment on the membership," Dr. Hughes said.

A dog photographed in the arms of a fireman during the club fire and bearing the name "Sweetum" is not a mascot of the club, the directors' committee announced.

MISS M. CLARK DIES
AT COVINGTON HOME

Covington, Ga., May 12.—(Special.)—Miss Mollie Clark, eldest daughter of the late Col. and Mrs. W. W. Clark, of Covington, died at her home here today after a lingering illness.

She is survived by a brother, W. C. Clark, and one sister, Miss Tempie Clark, of Covington.

Funeral services will be held at the home Tuesday morning, Rev. W. H. La Prade, pastor of the North Covington church, conducting the services.

Interment will be at West View cemetery, Covington.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS
FACING SHUTDOWN

row money to finance operations through November and December.

Closing of Schools.

Failure of the conference committee to find a way to supply this money was declared by finance committee and school board members to foreshadow an actual shutdown. It was declared improbable that the board could float a loan for more than $800,000, the full amount required for the four months, even if such a loan should be sought.

Aldermen Bachman and W. B. Hartsfield, of the conference committee, laid the situation directly at the feet of the council bloc which had fought successfully for water rate reduction at the meeting last Monday. This reduction, they said, cut prospective city revenues more than $200,000, necessitating repeal of at least $110,000 of appropriations without any consideration for public schools.

The finance committee was called by Alderman Bachman to meet at 11 o'clock Friday morning to be apprised officially of the breakdown of efforts at school relief and to go formally into the matter of slashing $110,000 out of appropriations in order to meet the water rate cut.

School Board Meets.

The school board today is to take cognizance of the critical situation it faces by deferring election of new teachers. Under civil service, teachers now on the staff do not come up for reelection.

Superintendent Willis A. Sutton said that because of the financial shortage he would recommend election of only 25 teachers, instead of 100 or more, the number usually elected at the regular May meeting. He said that classes were being consolidated wherever possible to reduce the teaching staff.

Rev. Jack Penn's proposal to abolish the Opportunity school as a measure of economy is slated to come up for action and is promised the vigorous support of Mrs. Julia O'Keefe Nelson and one or two other members. Authors of the abolishment plan say that Smith-Hughes classes, separate from the Opportunity school, offer the same of city money devoted to it. Other members will actively defend the school, which offers instruction to adults who had no educational opportunities while they were of school age. The Eubanks proposal for semi-monthly instead of monthly meeting also will be considered.

GAME AND FISH LAW CHANGES ARE PLANNED

State Game and Fish Commissioner Peter S. Twitty returned to his office Monday after a week spent investigating conditions among oyster and prawn fishers and packers of the south Georgia coast. While he was in Brunswick last week, Mr. Twitty was present at the organization meeting of an oyster and prawn packers' association and the commissioner anticipates a great betterment in the fish industry on the coast as a result.

A meeting of a subcommittee of the legislative committee on game and fish will be held in Mr. Twitty's office on June 5, he stated, at which time an effort will be made to draft a bill making numerous changes in state laws.

TROLLEY COMPANY PLANS TO COMBINE TWO CAR ROUTES

Petition has been filed with the Georgia public service commission by the Georgia Railway and Power company for permission to combine its Pine and Cooper street car routes in Atlanta.

These routes now run from the outer end of their respective runs and turn back in the center of the city, and it is proposed to combine them into one crosstown run. Permission for the change is asked at this time in conjunction with removal of tracks and repaving of Richardson street, authority for which has already been granted by city council.

Under the combination proposed it is stated that there will be no overlapping in the downtown section and, officials of the company declare, it will assure faster service. They add that practically all right and left turns for both cars will be eliminated, resulting in greatly improved traffic conditions.

The proposed route will begin at the baseball park, thence along the Pine street car route to Whitehall and Hunter streets, continuing out Whitehall to Cooper and out Cooper to the Southern terminus at Hendrix avenue. A ten-minute schedule is proposed during rush hours, with a fifteen-minute service during non-rush hours and at night.

Officials of the company state that this proposed new routing is one of the first steps in plans for reouting of lines for improvement of traffic conditions.

PERMISSION ASKED TO DISCONTINUE SEVERAL TRAINS

The Georgia public service commission will hear petition today from the Georgia railroad asking permission to discontinue trains No. 13, 14 and 15, between Atlanta and Social Circle, and trains No. 90, 91 and 92, between Social Circle and Monroe.

These trains include one each way for the through trip from Atlanta to Monroe on week days and one Sunday train coming in to Atlanta. Reasons advanced by the road in seeking to discontinue the service are that they are running with practically no passengers since development of automobile bus travel between these points in addition to the large number of people who make the trip by private automobile.

The road also seeks to discontinue its trains Nos. 9 and 10 between Camak and Washington.

The petition of the Gainesville and Northwestern railroad to discontinue its agency station at Robertstown will also be heard today.

REROUTING OF CAR LINES IS STARTED IN CITY MONDAY

Rerouting of street car lines affected by new paving work which was started Monday at the intersection of Broad and Marietta streets, has been put into effect.

Twelve of the 25 car routes in the city are affected by the new paving and track work, but every step is being taken by street railway officials, it is stated, to eliminate trouble. Conductors have been instructed to allow for delay in the handling of transfers, and to be courteous in explaining new car routings to patrons.

TEN ACRES VOTED FOR ART MUSEUM

Ten acres of Piedmont park were voted to the Atlanta Art association for an art museum by the park committee of council Monday morning.

Deeds for the museum site at the northwest corner of the park in the polo grounds are to be drawn by City Attorney James L. Mayson. They will require approval of mayor and council before they become effective.

C. B. Bidwell, representing the art association, told the committee that $500,000 is now in hand to build the first unit of the museum. When completed it will represent an investment of more than $1,000,000, he said.

The park commission award was made in affirmation of an award made several weeks ago by the committee, but which was held up by a petition for injunction brought by losing bidders and later dismissed by the superior court. Mayor Walter Sims declined to sign the concession contract, but the Deal interests announced that they were proceeding to take charge on the ground that the mayor's signature is not necessary. They had begun work at Piedmont park Saturday, after the court's decision had been announced. Grant park concession to the Chase-Good interests does not expire until June 1.

OUTSIDER FOR CHIEF

Jett To Keep Office Until New Man Is Named.

Hopes of a dozen or more subordinate police officers that they might be given a trial for the post of chief were dashed by the announcement by Police Committee Chairman Edward H. Inman Monday that an outsider would be elected chief in order not to stir up more factional strife within the department.

Chairman Inman said he plans that no permanent police head would be elected until the Beavers appeal is disposed of by the higher courts or the city charter is amended, as he has asked so to abolish the office of chief altogether, creating a new position of "superintendent of police" as head of the department. Captain E. L. Jett probably will continue to act as chief in the intervening time, the chairman said.

Applications should be filed with the Highway department, first floor of the Constitution building, between the hours of 11 o'clock and between 5 and 7 o'clock.

45,000 SCHOOL PUPILS

Enrollment in System Shows Increase Over 1923.

An actual enrollment of about 45,000 pupils in Atlanta public schools was estimated for this month by M. E. Coleman, head of the census and attendance office of the school department Monday. Total enrollment is 52,487, but that figure does not take into account withdrawals from school during the year.

School census figures show that 220 white families have moved into the city between February 1 and April 30, giving basis for an estimate of 1,100 new pupils in that period. This does not mean 1,100 more in schools, however, as some families have moved from Atlanta during the same period, it was explained.

Nominal enrollment for April 30 was 52,201 while nominal enrollment for June 1 last year was 48,122, indicating an increase of nearly 4,000.

COTTON SPINNERS TO MEET MAY 27

Charlotte, N. C., May 12.—The present situation in the cotton textile trade, which is declared to have resulted in widespread curtailment, north and south, with consequent unemployment, will be discussed at the annual convention of the American Cotton Manufacturers' association, to be held in Atlantic City, N. J., May 27-28, according to announcement by Secretary W. D. Adams, of Charlotte, who today made public the tentative program.

The discussion, said a statement by Mr. Adams, will be featured by an analytic review of the contributing causes of depression, "particularly touching increasing importations and the tariff situation, in the hope that some practical and constructive steps may be outlined for alleviation, to the end that confidence may be restored and full employment resumed."

"In addition to this vital topic," Mr. Adams' statement continued, "will be the further elaboration of plans looking to the relief of the southern industry from dependence on outside agencies, particularly in the direction of building more, bleaching, dyeing, finishing and mercerizing plants, thereby obviating the neces-

CLUB TO FIGHT SLASH IN IMPROVEMENT FUND

Protest against repeal of the $20,000 McDonough road bridge appropriation, as tentatively proposed by the finance committee of council, was voted by the Milton Avenue Community club in session Monday night. The Third Ward Boosters club, which meets tonight at the Station school, is expected to take action similar to that of the Milton Avenue Community club.

The proposed abandonment was denounced as "penny wise" extravagance on the part of the city, in view of the fact that the city's $20,000 was the keystone in the financial arrangement to obtain an $83,000 public improvement for the city.

Power Company to Aid.
Speakers pointed out that the Georgia Railway and Power company on Monday afternoon had announced that it would devote up to $5,500 to the bridge, while the Southern railway already had appropriated $10,000. The Fulton county commissioners had voted to pay one-fourth of the total cost and to do all the work on the approaches, estimated in all to amount to $47,500, making a total, exclusive of the city's appropriation, of $63,000.

If the $20,000 appropriation is repealed by the city it was declared that the whole project would be abandoned, with the probability that the more than $60,000 of outside support would be lost.

Ask Water Rate Retained.
The club adopted a motion urging that the present water rate be retained if it would save the public improvements planned for the year and enable continued operation of schools, and asking that, if the water rate is retained, the total sum realized by the change of plans be used in operation of schools.

The Georgia Railway and Power company's offer of $5,500 contribution toward the bridge was announced Monday by President Preston Arkwright in a letter to third ward representatives, expressing the opinion that the company would be able to find the money to make the gift as a result of relief it is confident council will grant to put the company on a self-sustaining basis.

TERM OF 20-YEAR MAN COMMUTED BY WALKER

Claude O'Shields, serving a sentence of 20 years in the state prison for robbery, imposed by Fulton superior court, was granted his freedom Monday when Governor Clifford Walker commuted his sentence to present service.

O'Shields was convicted in August, 1911. The prison commission recommended commutation of the sentence on the ground that he had already served a large portion of it and has since lost his mind and is probably dying of tuberculosis. It is understood relatives have agreed to take O'Shields out of the state and provide for him.

LAW FRATERNITY WILL GIVE DINNER SATURDAY

The Delta Theta Phi law fraternity will give a banquet at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel at 8 o'clock Saturday night. President Calvin Coolidge, a member of the fraternity, has been invited to attend. R. C. Alston and Eugene R. Black, local members, are expected to address the members.

Roy Saunger, young white farm worker living on Bolton road near Atlanta, appeared before United States Commissioner W. C. Saunger, according to his statement, filled out one of the blanks for the sum of $50 to "fool his wife," later buying this with the rest of the blanks.

Saunger was bound over to the United States grand jury. The government was represented by Assistant United States Attorney Robert M. Cook.

Defeat Sure If Reactionaries Control Party, Says McAdoo

Progressive Democrats Will March to Certain Victory, He Tells 5,000 Tennesseans.

Nashville, Tenn., May 12.—If the coming democratic convention is dominated by reactionary forces, the party is doomed to certain defeat in the November election, William G. McAdoo, candidate for the democratic nomination for president, asserted in the closing address of his Tennessee campaign here tonight to 5,000 persons at the Ryman auditorium.

"If, on the other hand," he said, "the party is controlled by the progressive forces of democracy, standing for those immutable principles which Jefferson formulated, which Jackson vindicated and which Wilson sublimated, it will march irresistibly to victory in November, 1924."

"Two great forces are contending for mastery," he stated, "the forces of reaction and privilege on the one hand and the forces of democratic progress, justice and equality on the other."

No Compromise Possible.

"There cannot, there must not be any compromise between these forces," Mr. McAdoo continued. "There can be no twilight zone between them. The issue must be sharpened to the keen edge so the decision of the American people may be clear-cut and definite as to whether they want privilege, plutocracy and reaction to run this nation with all the graft, corruption and sordidness which has been displayed by the republican administration at Washington for the past three years, or whether they want a restoration of Christian, progressive democratic government, clean and incorruptible, high-minded and high-principled like that which our matchless hero of democracy, Woodrow Wilson, gave the nation for eight years."

The fight within the democratic party is between the "reactionary element, small in numbers, but powerful in resource on the one hand, and the progressive element, large in numbers but not well organized, which found expression in Woodrow Wilson, on the other," Mr. McAdoo stated.

Reaction in Both Parties.

"If the fight were confined to these two elements within the democratic party," he continued, "there would be no doubt about the issue. But reaction and privilege is so determined to repossess itself of government that Wall street and the reactionary republican organization is acting in concert with the reactionary elements of the democratic party to control one-third of the democratic national convention, with the hope that through a deadlock they can force the nomination of some reactionary, or colorless democrat, and thereby assure reelection of discredited republican reactionaries or to continue control through a subservient democratic reactionary."

"There is little, if any difference between the kind of reactionary democratic administration, this alliance is striving for and the present reactionary administration. I am as much opposed to reactionaries and the enemies of true democracy disguised as democrats as I am to reactionary republicans."

Progressive Democracy at Stake.

"The cause of progressive democracy is at stake in the forthcoming election," Mr. McAdoo continued. "All the issues of national and international character must be decided by the decision of the American people, depending upon their well-being and prosperity, and upon their decision depends also the destiny of this nation and the world for years to come."

Andrew Jackson did not believe in divided councils, he told the people of Tennessee, of which state McAdoo was formerly a citizen, in urging the people to send a delegation to New York "instructed to speak in the voice of Tennessee for one candidate and for definite principles, that the people of Tennessee can have a real influence in that convention."

The speaker urged Tennesseans to avoid sending a national delegation split into factions, as he said, was the case at the Baltimore convention in 1912, when some supported one candidate and some another, when, he said, the voice of this state spoke no commanding influence or effect, and did not play the part it should in nominating Woodrow Wilson.

Mr. McAdoo said that his opponents were urging uninstructed delegations from the states that are favorable to the cause of progressive democracy. Let us fight instructions with instructions and make their issue clear-cut and unmistakable.

"The first duty is to bring the government back to honesty, to drive graft and corruption out of Washington," Mr. McAdoo said. He held that the oil scandal is exclusively republican, "because it is officials of the Harding-Coolidge administration, and no others, who have betrayed their public trusts."

Scandal in Vet Bureau.

He referred to the veterans' bureau scandal as "even meaner and more contemptible," and to prohibition enforcement as a "nation-wide scandal of the gravest character," which he "permeates the government at Washington to such an extent that they constitute a grave indictment of the administration."

Mr. McAdoo reviewed his record as secretary of the treasury and asserted that if elected president, he intends to call a special session of congress to consider agricultural relief, "substitute a policy of enlightened international cooperation for the present foolish policy of isolation," railroad and tariff reform, child labor, equal pay and equal rights for women and other measures.

VETO THREATENED FOR TAX MEASURE

crats are expected to insist upon the Simmons income tax schedule, which varies little from the Longworth compromise adopted by the house, and the corporation tax, substituting for the present flat levy of 1 1/2 per cent a tax on undistributed profits. To the latter, particularly, the treasury department and President Coolidge are known to be opposed.

In its present form, Chairman Smoot insists the bill will fall short by more than $150,000,000 of raising enough revenue for the next fiscal year. Where this loss can be made up in the bill is problematical.

The democratic income tax schedule, its sponsors contend, will raise as much if not more than the Mellon rates or the Longworth compromise approved by the house. Few of the excise tax reductions are open to change in the conference, both the senate and house having agreed on these.

Both republican and democratic house conferees are understood to favor restoration to the bill of the two Mellon proposals aimed to check tax evasions, both of which were knocked out in the senate. This would bring in $25,000,000 additional revenue annually.

House republican insurgents, through Representative Frear, Wisconsin, made known their indorsement today of several of the important provisions of the bill as passed by the senate, particularly the corporation tax and the provision for publicity of returns, as well as the income tax schedule.

CONGRESSMAN LANGLEY CONVICTED BY JURY

terly part of the conspiracy, Thomas J. Finn, Columbus, Ohio, testified that he was a partner with Huth and Carey and delivered the first $2,000 payment of the $30,000 to Lipschutz. Gus Swartzkopf, Philadelphia, supported Finn's testimony and testified he was presented with the money to be paid.

Mortimer on Stand.

Elias H. Mortimer, Washington and New York, testified he had several times paid Langley money for his influence and told of several conferences between Langley and whiskey men. Collins testified Langley had tried to get him to issue permits and became angry when he refused, concluding by the threatening to "break him politically" for his refusal.

United States District Attorney Sawyer A. Smith has been in charge of prosecution assisted by Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, Assistant United States Attorney General of Washington, D. C.

Langley took the stand in his own defense and entered general denials of the charges. He was subjected to a severe cross-examination by District Attorney Smith, but did not change his testimony. Counsel for the congressman placed many character witnesses on the stand, including Governor W. J. Fields, Kentucky, and Congressman Arthur Brouse and Ben Johnson. Langley has been in congress continuously for 17 years and is now chairman of the house committee on public buildings.

Mrs. Langley was a constant companion of her husband during the trial.

HOUSE MAY MOVE TO EXPEL LANGLEY

Washington, May 12.—Action by the house in the case of Representative Langley, found guilty by a jury at Covington, Ky., will await a report by the special committee investigating the charges brought against him. It was said Monday night by members of the committee.

The committee will meet Tuesday, when a decision as to their recommendations in the case will be considered, it is said. The committee expects to make the report on Representative Zihlman, of Maryland, public at this time and had expected to have the report on Langley ready in a few days.

Expulsion proceedings probably will be started in the house as a result of the verdict. There was some doubt expressed Monday night as to just how the house would proceed.

The committee will report the facts it has developed in the investigation—which has been going on for several weeks secretly—to the house, where appropriate action can be taken, Representative Burton, of Ohio, chairman said when told of the verdict.

The investigation by the committee has been conducted in executive session, and its findings have not been made public.

Return of the verdict is expected to hasten the report of the committee, on which action in the house will be based.

Representative Langley was elected to the 60th congress in 1907, and has served continuously since.

SENATE ORDERS CHANGE IN RATES

to the interstate commerce commission to use the authority now vested in it.

Spokesmen for the farm bloc said the resolution would mark a great step forward in aiding the farmer in that quick, cheap transportation would be afforded for farm products.

The resolution declares that "agriculture is the basic industry of this country; and that it is the policy of congress to promote, encourage and foster that industry, and especially in rate making during the existing depression in agriculture."

Orders Immediate Changes.

It directs the interstate commerce commission to effect without delay

"such lawful changes in the rate structure of the country as will promote the freedom of movement by the common carriers of the products of agriculture, including live stock, at the lowest possible lawful rate compatible with the maintenance of adequate transportation service."

Senator Capper, republican, Kansas, one of the farm bloc spokesmen, in a formal statement said he would oppose adjournment of congress until a "real effort has been made to help the farmers of this country."

"Pending now in congress are four measures for farm relief," the statement continued. "Three of them are designed to assist in the stabilizing of farm prices—not in arbitrary fixing of farm prices as they are often deliberately misrepresented."

Would Restore Parity.

"They propose to try to restore a parity between farm prices and general commodity prices approximating the ratio that existed during the pre-war years. These measures are the McNary-Haugen bill, the Norris-Sinclair bill, the Curtis-Aswell bill, and the Smith resolution. And one of these measures will be of great assistance to farmers."

The principles of the McNary-Haugen bill, which is to come to a vote in the house within a few days, are economically sound. The bill is nothing more than a workable plan for making the protective tariff effective in maintaining a fair domestic price level for crops of which we produce a normal surplus. The enactment of this emergency measure would mean better prices for the farmer immediately.

Action Imperative.

"Action on these measures is imperative. One of the three stabilization measures and by all means the Smith resolution should command the immediate attention of congress. There is no question before congress of greater importance to the general welfare and prosperity of the country than this question of farm relief."

"The farmer needs all the help the government can give him along sound practical lines, and he needs it at once."

The McNary-Haugen bill would create a $200,000,000 export corporation to buy farm products at a stipulated price derived from the average price existing during the period from 1905-14. The Norris-Sinclair bill would create the "Farmers' and Consumers' Financing Corporation," capitalized at $100,000,000, to sell farm products direct to the consumer and export farm commodities in government ships free of charge.

The Curtis-Aswell bill would create the Interstate Farm Marketing association to promote cooperative processing, preparing for market, handling, storing and marketing of all agricultural commodities. An appropriation of $10,000,000 would be made available to the association.

COLON POISONING DESTROYS HEALTH

Hastens Old Age and Premature Degeneration of All Vital Organs.

You are a wise man or woman if you understand your colon and keep it in perfect working order. Health, happiness, vigor and long life are the gifts of which an active colon gives you—and a lazy colon takes away.

Your colon is the last five feet of your digestive canal. It is your sewerage system; your garbage can, so to speak. Keep it clean and you are well and happy; let it stagnate and it will distill the poisons of decay, fermentation (gas) and putrefaction into your blood, poisoning your brain and nerves so that you are restless, irritable and blue; poisoning your heart so that you are weak, listless and lazy; poisoning your lungs so that your breath is heavy or foul; poisoning your stomach and digestive organs so that you are bloated, belching and uncomfortable with gas pains; poisoning your blood so that your skin looks yellow, sallow and unhealthy; poisoning every part and organ of your body, through your blood, making you look and feel old and ugly long before your time; making your joints and your back stiff and rheumatic, your eyes dull and your brain sluggish.

By the perfect law of Nature, your colon should empty itself three times a day—within an hour after eating. Does your colon work that well? If not, it has lost its tone. What do we mean by tone? Your colon is a hollow muscle. Its walls are made up of long, muscle fibres or muscle cells which, by their contraction, empty the colon just as you would squeeze a rubber hose pipe. These muscle fibres should contract three times a day—within an hour after each meal. If they do not contract, they have lost their tone—their power to contract.

But, there is a practically perfect remedy for lazy, flabby colons. This remedy quickly restores the tone, is absolutely harmless and decidedly pleasant to take. Clip this article and take it to your druggist. Tell him to give you a bottle of Colgate—the colon tonic. It will cost you one dollar if you are pleased with it, nothing if you are not pleased with it, for every druggist has been instructed to refund the price and ask no questions if his customer is not thoroughly satisfied.

But you will be delighted with Colgate or it will make you feel like a different person. Your eyes will sparkle with vitality and alertness; your brain will be clear and active; your complexion will be fresh and transparent, reflecting the purity of your blood; your digestion will be thorough and your appetite keen, for your food will taste delicious and will agree with you; you will sleep and awake refreshed; your system will be full of vim and vigor; you will feel younger, stronger, vigorous—you will enjoy the pleasure of living.

Get started on Colgate today. Nearly every person over twenty-five or thirty years of age, and many younger, need Colgate more or less. You will be simply delighted with it. Colgate cannot possibly do you any harm—it can only do you good. Try it on our guarantee. It will help you live long, well and happily.—(adv.)

The new Elgin Railroad Watch, "B.W. Raymond," 21-jewel movement, acknowledged to be the most highly specialized timekeeping instrument ever produced for the railroad man.

Elgin Strap Watches for men, cases in Gold, Gold-filled, and Silver. Prices ranging from $20 to $75.

Why People Think so Highly of Elgin Watches

ASK nearly any man what he thinks of the Elgin Watch, and he's likely to say: "Elgin?—fine timekeeper."

Elgin timekeeping performance is one thing that never fails to command respect.

Now here are some of the factors that stand back of the Elgin timekeeping performances:

The Elgin Time Observatory—Established by Elgin to obtain the precise time direct from the stars.

This precise time is transmitted throughout the Elgin workshops and timing laboratories. It controls the making and adjustment of each Elgin Watch for men and women.

The Elgin Watchmaking Organization—A selected group of men and women highly trained in the technique of watch production, as developed by the Elgin experience covering nearly sixty years of fine watchmaking.

The Nation-wide Service in Elgin Watches by Local Jewelers Everywhere—So that wherever you live, and whatever accident may happen to your Elgin, it can be put back into your pocket quickly in first-class order again.

These are but a few of the many reasons why the name "Elgin" on a watch inspires the confidence of the American public.

Constitution Plays Host to Thousands of Mothers of Atlanta

BY RALPH T. JONES.

More than 3,000 of the older mothers of Atlanta packed the Howard theater to capacity Monday at noon, as guests of The Constitution, at a tremendously successful "Mother's day party."

In future, when Atlantans are talking over the ingredients necessary to make a whaling big party—a party that goes over with a bang in every detail—just mention the mothers of Atlanta, the Howard theater and The Constitution. It's a trio that can't be beaten when results are desired.

Long before the hour of the performance, 12 noon, the mothers were crowding outside the theater. At 11 o'clock the doors were opened, so that they might enter and wait in comfort in their seats. One hour later, as the show began, the huge theater was packed to its limit, downstairs, upstairs and boxes. And a few were turned away. For their sake, this was regretted, but it just couldn't be helped. There was no more room.

All Classes Present.

Presumably it takes all sorts and varieties of mothers to make up the motherhood of a great city like Atlanta. It is certain that nearly every sort and variety was in the Howard yesterday. That is, except the young mothers. Leaving to make this a party for the older mothers. The Constitution asked that only those 40 years of age or older accept the invitation. And it is certain that, if any did, it was a little about their age in order to get in, they were very few. One or two did look remarkably young for 40, but then the modern magic of the cosmetic art accounts for a lot and it is hardly likely that any woman would fib about her age—upwards, at least.

As for the age limit at the other end of the scale, there could not seem to be any. Women who could have said they were 100 years old and been believed were there. Not one or two, but by the score.

One old lady—she must have been well over 80—admitted she was a trifle too feeble to enjoy the crowd that pushed through the doors. But she brightened up when an attaché of the theater held her slowly down the aisle to a good seat.

"Thanks, young man," she sighed as she sat back. "It's the first time I've been inside a theater in 25 years."

Home For Old Women.

Then, in a little group of their own, came the dear old ladies from the Home for Old Women, in West End. A special fleet of Black and White taxicabs brought them in and took them back again.

Sweet is a word that doesn't often appear in the vocabulary of a man. It is a typically feminine adjective. But "sweet" is the only adjective that fits this time. For if ever there were a score of sweet old women it was these. With soft black dresses and frilly collars of treasured old lace around their necks, they slowly walked down to their seats. Snow-white hair peeped from beneath bonnets that are not seen nowadays—bonnets of the vintage of two or three decades ago. But the prettiest hats seen on Peachtree street for many a month, pretty because of the faces which peeped out from below their brims and the tender smiles that still lurked around mouths most kissable.

One poor old soul stumbled on the stairway leading to the gallery. She quietly asked a young man who came along just behind her to help her to her feet. She didn't seem worried or disturbed over the accident—just took it as a matter of course and hurried on, as best she might, to get her seat before the show began.

Scores and scores had to be resisted to their places. The old limbs were not quite up to the task that the youthful spirit had imposed. There were, however, plenty of willing hands to help and plenty of strong young arms for support. Glad of the opportunity, too.

It is a safe guess that the total combined age of the Howard audience at that show Monday was greater than any it ever saw before. Looking over the great auditorium it was like looking over a sea of heads topped with foam. For nearly all the hair was gray.

Only one tiny detail went wrong. It had been intended to present each mother with a flower, but the unexpectedly heavy demand of Sunday—Mother's day—and the funeral of a beloved Atlanta citizen, had almost completely exhausted the florists. However, seeing that it was out of the question to give flowers to all, the blossoms which could be secured were made into bunches and presented to the ladies from the home in West End. It was felt that perhaps they would appreciate them as well, or better, than any other score who could be selected.

Entertaining Program.
The program, specially arranged for the performance, proved as entertaining as had been predicted. There was a great feature film, "The Breaking Point," a comedy that brought roars of laughter from that audience that almost made you think it was composed of school girls, a splendid musical reel and a musical program extraordinary in itself.

The orchestra, under the baton of Buel B. Risner, gave a special overture, "East, West, North and South." Vincent Lopez Junior's jazz band played "Hits of Yesterday." Mrs. Alex Kesse sang Kipling's immortal "Mother I Mine," and other selected songs, with orchestra and violin-piano obligato accompaniment.

New American Born Since War, Dr. Owen Says at Dedication

"There has been born a new American since the world war," declared the Rev. Dr. William Russell Owen, of Macon, in an address delivered at the dedication, by the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs, of a beautiful trolley shelter in front of the United States Hospital No. 48 Monday afternoon.

"The new American is a composite. He has the calmness of an Englishman, the fighting ability of an Irishman, the religious instincts of a Welshman, the stolidness of the Indian, the broad-mindedness of the westerner, the progressiveness of the Yankee, the shrewdness of the New Englander and the courtesy of the southerner."

He has the calmness of an Englishman, the fighting ability of an Irishman, the religious instincts of a Welshman, the stolidness of the Indian, the broad-mindedness of the westerner, the progressiveness of the Yankee, the shrewdness of the New Englander and the courtesy of the southerner.

A crowd of approximately 300 witnessed the dedication, which was preceded by a number of short talks and other exercises. Girls of Washington university started the exercises by giving several beautiful dances in costume on the lawn. This was followed by an impressive drill performed by a composite company of men from the 22d Infantry at Fort McPherson.

Following the drill, Mrs. T. Stevens, president of the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs, called the meeting to order and introduced the speakers. Those taking part in the program were Mrs. H. M. Nicholas, Major M. Bryson, Major G. S. Pitcher, J. B. Conyers, General William H. Johnston, Mayor Sims, Mrs. A. P. Trendwell and Judge Cannon. K. C. A beautiful flag for the trolley shelter was presented the Federation of Women's Clubs by Mrs. Trendwell. It was accepted by Mrs. H. M. Nicholas.

The federation is composed of 113 clubs, associations and lodges of Atlanta women. One unit has charge of the hospital at Fort McPherson. Another unit, which is in cooperation with the hospital and the Red Cross in maintaining activities at the hospital.

Music was furnished by the military band of Fort McPherson and the band of the Georgia Railway & Power company.

UNDERWOOD TO FORCE ISSUE ON KLAN AT MEET

tial candidates are intricately bound up in the Klan issue. McAdoo is regarded with a friendly eye by the Klan but Underwood and Smith are to be opposed. In event Smith fails to get the nomination, some of his strength probably will be inherited by Underwood because of their common position in this respect. Senator Ralston, of Indiana, coming from the most active Klan center, has sought to remain neutral. When pressed for a declaration some time ago, he declared himself for religious freedom, but declined to comment on the Klan directly.

The question has obtruded itself in the Mayfield election contest and Senator Watson, of Indiana, a member of the senate committee, has been the target of much pressure from both sides in Indiana. Reports that the committee would dodge the Klan phase of the investigation brought from Chairman Spencer Monday the statement that whenever alleged acts of violence in Texas seem to be relevant to the Mayfield case, they will be investigated.

The old knew-nothing plan which Underwood proposes to include in the democratic platform this year concludes:

Text of Plank.
"The foundation of this union of states having been laid in, and its prosperity, expansion, and pre-eminent example in free government, built upon entire freedom in matters of religious concernment, and no respect of person in regard to rank or place of birth, no party can justly be deemed national, constitutional, or in accordance with the American principle, which bases its exclusive organization upon religious opinions and accidental birthplace. And hence a political crusade in the nineteenth century, and in the United States of America, against Catholic and foreign born, is neither justified by the past history or the future prospects of the country, nor in unison with the spirit of toleration and enlarged freedom which peculiarly distinguishes the American system of popular government."

GOV. BRANDON DENIES KNOWLEDGE OF PLANS.
Montgomery, Ala., May 12.—Governor W. W. Brandon said today he had received no official invitation to make the nominating speech for Senator Oscar W. Underwood. He also announced he had no knowledge of any plans to inject a fight against the Ku Klux Klan in the national convention.

ments of the convention. The budget, as submitted is distributed as follows: For foreign missions, 45 per cent; home missions 23 per cent; Christian education 20 per cent, and for ministerial relief 12 per cent.

It is believed that no opposition whatever will develop to the plan (plus to be submitted, while there is every indication that it will meet with hearty approval by the members of this convention, and be adopted for future procedure.

Four Men Mentioned.

Unusual interest is being manifested by the hundreds of delegates arriving in the city for the convention in the election of a president for the ensuing three years. Dr. E. Y. Mullins, president of the Southern Baptist Theological seminary, of Louisville, has announced that he will not allow his name to be considered for re-election, as he has served the customary three years.

It is stated by members of the convention that the names of four very eminent southern Baptist leaders will be placed in nomination when the convention assembles Wednesday morning.

The names most frequently mentioned are those of Dr. John D. Mell, of Athens; Dr. G. B. McDaniel, of Richmond; Dr. L. R. Scarborough, of Fort Worth, and Dr. Z. T. Cody, of Columbia, S. C.

Dr. Mell Popular.
Dr. Mell, who is one of the vice presidents of the convention, and also president of the Georgia Baptist convention, is well known throughout the south, and is recognized as an expert parliamentarian. Dr. McDaniel, pastor of the Richmond First Baptist church, is recognized as one of the ablest ministers in the entire denomination. Dr. L. R. Scarborough, president of the Southwestern seminary, has been in charge of the $75,000,000 campaign during the past five years. Dr. Cody is editor of the Baptist Courier of South Carolina.

Today will witness many activities among Baptists as preliminary work before the formal opening of the convention session Wednesday morning. Louis D. Newton, editor of the Christian Index, will be host at luncheon to the eighteen visiting Baptist editors and a group of other eminent Baptist workers at the Wincoff hotel.

A conference on fundamentals of Bible doctrines will be held at night at the First Baptist church. At this meeting it is understood a statement will be prepared for submission to the convention declaring the sentiment of southern Baptists with reference to some of the disturbing questions that are now confronting church people throughout the world. This convention no doubt will voice emphatic approval of the statement issued by the Baptist World alliance of last year, which has been accepted as complete and orthodox.

During the afternoon a large group of Sunday school and Baptist Young People's union workers will enjoy a motor trip to Stone mountain. This group of workers has been in session for part of two days, and has announced that a program looking toward the further development of young people in religious life and activities has been worked out and will not be urged for adoption by the convention.

Two interesting meetings are scheduled for the night hour, one to be held at the city auditorium and the other at the Baptist tabernacle.

Laymen's Mass Meeting.
The first Baptist council of Atlanta, and to be participated in by hundreds of representatives of other denominations, a great laymen's mass meeting will be held at the auditorium at 7:30 o'clock, presided over by F. J. Paxton. After an organ concert of 15 minutes by Dr. Charles A. Sheldon, Jr., the congregation will sing well-known church hymns, led by Professor John D. Hoffman. Dr. E. Y. Mullins, president of the convention, will conduct the devotional services at 7:50 o'clock.

Senator Walter F. George, one of the leading speakers of the occasion, will be introduced by Governor Clifford Walker. Douglas Freeman, another speaker, will be presented by an auxiliary to the convention and will include a solo by Mrs. J. H. Whitten and several numbers by a male quartet. The meeting will adjourn about 10 o'clock.

The first meeting of the Women's Missionary union convention will be held at 7:30 o'clock at the Baptist tabernacle. The missionary union is an auxiliary to the convention and holds its annual sessions at the same time and place. At the woman's meeting special emphasis will be placed on the work of the union, and emphasis will be laid upon the urgency of the work now confronting the Christian forces of America.

Patent Medicine Of Salesman Puts Woman in Hospital
BY MISS MOLLIE SHAMOS.
You remember Snowdrop eating the poisoned apple, her stepmother offered her in disguise? Seemingly there are cruel villains and native victims elsewhere than in fairy story.

Mrs. J. O. Downs, 33 Curran street, was treated at Grady hospital Monday for what was believed to be a mild case of poisoning as a result of tasting a patent medicine, which she says was offered her by an aged man who visited her home early Monday morning.

According to Mrs. Downs, she was in her back yard when the medicine salesman offered her wares. She told him that she didn't want any medicine, but it seems he wasn't so much interested in selling as he was in demonstrating the good quality of the medicine.

Fortunately, there are doctors and apothecaries at Grady, and Mrs. Downs didn't have to wait 10 years for a prince to come along before overcoming the effects of the tasting.

BY E. C. ELLIS.
Neal Avery, 95 West Georgia avenue, was arrested by Call Officer Bowman, Monday, on the charge of burglarizing the drug store and Postoffice Station 5, located within the drug store, of $28 in cash. He entered the store through a coal chute.

Burglars entered the home of W. M. Brittain, 81 Briarcliff road, some time Sunday, while members of the family were asleep, ransacked the house and disappeared with $1 in cash and an expensive gold watch. Entry was gained by a window.

Burglars also attempted to enter the home of A. H. Bancker, 100 Southeastern street, removing a small pane of glass from a side door, but failed to get in the house because of a special lock on the door.

W. L. Lawrence, 880 Grant street, reported the loss of an overcoat and several suits of clothing. Owners of the Davis Street pharmacy, 152 Davis street, declared thieves entered their store Sunday night, the second visit within the past week, taking each time a quantity of cigars and cigarettes.

Other robberies reported Monday follow:
Burglars entered the home of W. H. Stenau at Watrous and Hood streets, stealing an overcoat valued at $40 and a gold watch worth $140.
Carpenter tools, valued at $100, were stolen from H. G. Ellis, of 80 Garden street. Burglars entered by prying open a window.

The Purdy Grocery company, 313 North Jackson street, was entered and a suit of clothes and a bicycle stolen.
A "pretzle" tank was stolen from the automobile of Sam Koves, of 4 Armstrong street, while it was parked in front of his home.
E. M. Roberts, of 228 Ivy street, lost a new tire, stolen from his car while it was parked in front of his home.
The residence of T. J. Odum, of 21 Hall street, was looted of clothing valued at $100.
A bicycle was stolen from the attic of Henry Heard of 144 East Baker street, by two negroes who were seen leaving the house by Mrs. Heard.

Journalism Class Gains Experience On Constitution

Through the courtesy of The Constitution, members of the Journalism class of the Evening School of Commerce of Georgia Tech are experiencing their first try-out in journalism.

Working in groups of four, the class is taking final examination as reporters for The Constitution. The small group gives the student an opportunity, not only to show his ability, but to get the most out of the practical contact with a newspaper organization," explains Professor Joe B. Hosmer.

The students working on today's Constitution are Miss Mollie Shamos, Mrs. H. H. Hurt, E. C. Ellis and E. H. Von. Other groups will work tonight, Wednesday night and Monday and Tuesday of next week.

SALESMAN DROPS DEAD WAITING ON CUSTOMER

J. D. Word, of 381 South Ashby street, for many years a city salesman for the R. W. Davis Wholesale Grocery company, died suddenly early Monday night while he was waiting on a customer at the J. T. Statts grocery store, 116 Jefferson street. Heart trouble is thought to have caused his death, although he had been in the best of health.

He had resided here more than 20 years. He was a member of the First Baptist church, the Junior Order of American Mechanics and the Red Men.

Mrs. Word is survived by his widow, a step-daughter, Mrs. Will Mauldin, and a sister, Mrs. W. F. Wesley. Funeral services will be held from the residence of Mrs. Wesley, 383 North Jackson street, arrangements to be announced later by H. M. Patterson & Son.

PUBLISHERS POSTPONE ASHEVILLE CONVENTION

New Orleans, May 12.—Postponement of the annual convention of the Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association, which was to have begun June 30 at Asheville, N. C., was announced today by Arthur G. Newmyer, president of the organization. The new date selected is July 30, inclusive. Mr. Newmyer stated that the change was decided upon because of the possibility that the democratic national convention in New York might be in session so long as to prevent the arrival of some of the publishers in Asheville by June 30.

PASCHAL'S HOMER FEATURES THRILLING CONTEST

Crackers Stage Big Rally And Finally Beat Memphis, 6 to 5, in Eleven Innings

BY HENRY ALLEN.

"Well, I'll be jigged," muttered Johnny Dobbs.

In Monroe Mitchell and Otto Merz.

And numerous other such remarks were heard in the Memphis Chick's dressing room at Spiller's field yesterday after those same Chick had dropped a hard 11-inning game, 6 to 5,

to the Crackers.

And, kind reader, the reason for all this jabbering can be explained some thing like this:

Johnny Dobbs and his tribe were out to trounce the crippled Crackers good and hard in the first of a three-game series and were doing just this one thing up until the eighth inning.

Just three things were to be reckoned with that Johnny Dobbs and his tribe hadn't counted on. They were Mr. Benjamin Paschal, the Crackers' hard-hitting outfielder;

Dick Burris, and the fighting spirit of Bertram Niehoff's gang.

After looking as helpless as any ball club for seven innings before the offerings of Otto Merz, the Crackers

finally roused from their coma

in the eighth to send Otto to the place where had little pitchers go and evened up the count.

Paschal's Long Homer.

But Johnny Dobbs wasn't to be outgeneraled for he sent his outfit

into the lead in his half of the ninth and his squad sailed along smoothly enough to retire two of the Cracker batters in their half. Then up came the other obstacle in the person of

Ben Paschal. With the count two balls and one strike, he laced out the longest and hardest hit ball that has been cracked out on Poncey park

this year. The ball was way into deep left-center to the far end of the negro stands and this Benjamin crossed the plate for the tying run.

Then along came the tenth when the Crackers looked certain to count with the bases drunk and only one man retired. Johnny Brock came up to do the pinch hitting for Ray Francis,

but he hit into a double play, ending the activities in the frame. In the eleventh the Crackers were not to be denied. Frankie Zoellers hit a hard one to Tommy Taylor and barely reached the sack ahead of the throw. He went to second on a fielder's choice and crossed the plate

on Dick Burris' single to center, ending one of the most thrilling encounters dished out in the Crackers'

new ball orchard since the season opened.

Just about the largest Monday crowd of the season turned out to witness the activities, or it might be said it came to see the wonder team with which Johnny Dobbs has been tearing up the circuit with.

Those who went for the latter purpose

were not disappointed in the Memphis outfit, for it played jam-up ball until

CHAMPS MADE JACKETS PLAY OGLETHORPE IN TECH BOUTS And Auburn Here This Week

BY JOHN STATION.

Five collegiate boxing champions were made last night at Georgia Tech

when finals in all but one class of the six represented at the institution were fought. The bouts featured the entertainment at a smoker given by the

R. O. T. C. unit at the school.

Only one final bout is left and it will be fought Tuesday or Wednesday.

It will be between LaFleur, winner over Max Brayer in four rounds, and DuBois, who last night won the decision over Forrest. These boxers are featherweights. The LaFleur-Bayer bout, scheduled for three rounds, stretched into four as the referee was unable to give a decision.

The new boxing champions and the manner in which they won the titles

in last night's card are as follows:

Middleweight—Forrest, 152 pounds,

winner of decision in three rounds

over Wilcox.

Lightweight—Rogers, who won decision in three rounds over Gwyn.

Light-heavyweight—Irvin, winner

over Draman, in three rounds.

Welterweight—Glickson, who won decision over Sweet.

Bantamweight—Gray, winner of decision over Cox.

One of the best fights of the card was that between Forrest and Wilcox for the middleweight title. Both boys put up scrap worthy of much more experienced boxers. Gray won the bantamweight title in spite of the fact that his opponent is nearly a foot taller and much rangier than he is.

The Crackers started on the rallying rampage.

Everybody went away perfectly satisfied with everything for there were thrills plenty for all. It will be a long time before that tremendous poke of Paschal's is forgotten. From that time on everybody was just waiting to see who would be the man to bring the Crackers' winning run home. With Zoellers in a position to score, Dobbs gave orders to walk Paschal but up came Richard

Burris with the hit.

The Crackers were rather helpless

while swinging at the offerings of Merz and he looked at one time as though he would breeze down the stretch an easy winner, as his teammates had piled up four runs from the offerings of Ray Francis. Then came the eighth when the Crackers started the batting rampage with four hits to even the count. Monroe

Mitchell was given the assignment, but the Crackers were unstopable at this time.

Ray Francis, who worked 10 innings for the Crackers, went along at a very nice clip all during his regime, but he gave way to a pinch

batter in the 10th and Dick Niehaus was sent in to do the work. Dick received credit for winning the ball game.

The Chick lost no time in putting over one counter in the first inning.

Barbare doubled to left and went to third on Wade's sacrifice. Tommy

Taylor beat out a hit to second and Barbare counted.

Two more runs came in the sixth.

Barbare singled and was safe on second. Wade's sacrifice. Taylor rounded out but Walter took third on the play. Carlyle singled and Barbare counted. Anderson was safe on Krehmeyer's error. La Motte singled to center and Carlyle counted.

One more came in the seventh. Merz doubled and went to third on Molly craft's infield single. Barbare into a double play, but Merz held third. Wade walked. Taylor singled to count Merz.

Crackers Stage Big Rally.

The Crackers had their big inning in the eighth when they were erased out but Paschal singled to center and took third on Burris' single to right. Smith singled to left and Paschal counted. Burris stopping at second. Krehmeyer doubled to right and Burris scored on the play while

Smith came charging in. Yarnan had the ball and tagged him. La

Motte, as usual, was safe. Hillis hit to La Motte, who threw wild to Anderson and Krehmeyer raced home.

The Chick went into the lead in the ninth when Craft walked and took second on Barbare's sacrifice.

Wade singled and Craft counted.

In the eleventh Zoellers was safe

on an infield hit. Niehoff grounded out. Paschal was purposely walked.

Dick Burris came through with a single to score Frankie.

STRENUOUS DENIALS MADE IN BOOZE PROBE

Mobile, Ala., May 12.—Strenuous denials were made by the defense on the first day of their testimony in the federal court today in the hearing of 52 defendants charged with conspiring together to violate the national prohibition law. Some of the witnesses admitted they dealt in liquor and that the members of the sheriff's force enforced the law without regard to anyone, and without "fear or favor."

The defense put on three witnesses, among whom were three of the persons on trial, Percy B. Kearns, Mobile attorney; Deputy Sheriff John Moore and Jimmie Glass, who went on the stand in their own behalf. Kearns' testimony was the same as that given at his recent mistrial for bribery, that the money paid General Prohibition Agent Gonzales was from and for United States District Attorney Aubrey Boyles, who said he wanted to "catch the lone wolf for crookedness."

Strong denial was made by Deputy Sheriff John Moore of all the charges of the prosecution against him. He swore he always tried to carry out the instructions of the sheriff's office to enforce the liquor laws. James Glass admitted he had hauled and sold liquor, but denied he had ever entered into any conspiracy or obtained "protection" from anyone.

R. H. Walsh, theatrical manager; Harry Hardy Smith, an attorney, and A. W. Crow, former state law enforcement officer, all declared the reputation of Harry French, federal "informant" working out of District Attorney Boyles' office and main witness for the prosecution, was "very bad" and that they would not believe him on oath.

ERIC VON STROHEIM LOST FOR TWO DAYS

Los Angeles, Calif., May 12.—Lost on a dangerous mountain road since early Sunday, Eric Von Stroheim, famous motion picture director and actor, is feared to have met with serious accident.

For two days searching parties combing the woods where Von Stroheim was last seen have failed to find a trace of him.

Von Stroheim had been at Idylwild, his mountain home, 14 miles north of Redlands, where he went to write a scenario. He left Idylwild with his chauffeur early Sunday morning, Mrs. von Stroheim said.

It was not until Monday afternoon that Mrs. von Stroheim learned her husband had disappeared. She at once took charge of the search and sent parties out along routes she believed her husband might have followed.

The road from Idylwild to Redlands is dangerous and full of bad curves. Deep embankments are on either side much of the way.

Miners Entombed 3 Days Reported Well, Cheerful

Gilman, Colo., May 12.—Five miners entombed in the Empire Zinc Mining company's property near here last Saturday still were underground tonight, but all reported to rescue workers outside that they were well and cheerful. During the day, water, coffee and other food was passed to the men through an opening made by a diamond drill, and fresh air was pumped in to them.

Rescue work of scores of men was interrupted today by sliding of rock and timber, but mining officials of the mine were confident that the men would soon be reached.

During the day, one of the miners was asked by a messenger to rescue party if he had any message for "his girl." The entombed man replied: "All o. k., but I'll see her myself."

The entombed men laughed and joked with the workers, urging them to "hurry up so we can go home."

PRESENT SYSTEM LEVEE BUILDING RAPPED BY KING

Washington, May 12.—The present system of levee construction by the Mississippi river commission was criticized in the senate today as "wasteful and incompetent" by Senator King, democrat, of Utah. He read an engineer's report which, he said, indicated the army engineers did not hold themselves to the same specifications required of contractors, and that sections built by day labor under government supervision were so faulty as to endanger adjacent farm lands.

Senator King said he had been informed that army engineers "reserved the easiest work for themselves and then did it the cheapest way, in order that the cost might compare favorably with that done under contract." He added that in the lower Yazoo area long stretches of levee had been rendered worthless by the inclusion of "wood and other foreign matter, which will eventually rot and let the water through." It has been estimated, the Utah senator reported, that $1,120,000 would be required to bring one section of embankment to the status called for in the plans.

MINERS IN RUHR FACE STARVATION FROM LOCKOUT

Essen, Germany, May 12.—Unless the lockout of miners in the Ruhr and Rhineland, resulting from the refusal of the workers to accept a lengthened working day, is settled quickly, the workers face starvation, it is indicated here.

Mayors of cities in the Ruhr and the district governors declare it is illegal to pay unemployment doles from the communal funds since the miners have failed to accept an arbitration award.

The shortage of coal will soon lead to a cessation of the Essen coal supply, it is believed. Seventeen trains running into Essen have been suspended.

Home Is Foundation of Civilization, Says Mrs. Sharp

BY MRS. NORMAN SHARP,
Vice President of the Atlanta Woman's Club.

Better Homes week is being observed in Atlanta this week. No movement could be of greater importance than this of encouraging and stimulating interest in the establishment of more and better homes.

The home is the foundation of our civilization. The preservation of the home and the sanctity of the family fire-side is responsible for all that is good in the world today.

In just the degree that we have more and better homes, do we have more and better citizens. The highest ambition of a good citizen should be the establishment of a beautiful home. "My home is my castle," is an old saying that dates back farther than any of us know. Let us make this a slogan in Atlanta and keep it before us in the years to come. More homes and "better homes," and all else that is good will follow.

Woman's Club To Meet In Decatur Friday.

Decatur Woman's club will hold the regular meeting at the Decatur Presbyterian church Friday, May 16, at 3 p. m.

Mrs. Frank B. Pond, president, requests that all members be present.

Not for many years have the prices on Oriental rugs been so low.

Exchange Is Down. The deplorable conditions in the Orient can not continue. Normal conditions must return and with their return the rate of exchange will soar. Naturally this will increase the prices on rugs. The time to buy Oriental rugs is now—while exchange is in our favor.

Worth Vs. Words

Mere words and ink are too often used to conceal lack of true worth in merchandise. A camouflage of word-painting frequently hides glaring defects and lack of quality. So long as good words may be put to bad purposes, one must look further than mere words to discover worth.

True Worth lies in quality and value.
The Test of Merchandise

Is it good, is it real quality stuff—is it sold at the lowest price at which like quality may be bought?

These are the real tests. The way to apply them is by comparison.

Look Before Buying

Compare qualities, compare values. We invite comparisons here.

And it pays to compare. Every day more and more people are finding this to be true. From the lowest in price that is good, to the finest that may be had, our prices are always as low as like quality may be bought—very often lower than many advertised "bargains."

Cold Storage For Furs

An up-to-date cold storage plant has been installed in our building. Rates are quite modest.

Mrs. Norman Sharp Elected President of Woman's Club

In the election of officers for the Atlanta Woman's club Monday afternoon, Mrs. Norman Sharp was elected president; Mrs. D. F. Stevenson, first vice president; Mrs. W. B. Price, second vice president; Mrs. W. F. Melton, recording secretary; Mrs. J. P. Billups, assistant recording secretary; Mrs. E. V. Carter, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Arthur Hazard, treasurer; Mrs. Eva Corrigan, assistant treasurer; Mrs. John R. Hornady, auditor.

The only office contested was the first vice president, the nominees being Mrs. Stevenson and Mrs. Newton C. Wing, the latter being nominated from the floor and the former by the committee. This was the first office ever contested in the Atlanta Woman's club and the entire report of the nominating committee was sustained. Mrs. R. L. Turman, chairman of tellers, delivered the report to the president, Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, who announced the election of Mrs. D. F. Stevenson. The secretary was instructed to cast the ballot for the officers.

Dramatic Reading.

Mrs. Richardson, president of the club, presided over the meeting and, after an interesting business session, introduced Mrs. Wren McQuinn, a delightful artist in dramatic reading, who gave a most exquisite presentation of "Madame Butterfly." Mrs. McQuinn is Atlanta's very own artist and in her beautiful impersonation of the petite Japanese character she was thoroughly captivating. Mrs. McQuinn's home is in Atlanta, but she has spent much of her time for recent years in Florida. She has made a life study of dramatic reading, having had instruction in this city under Mrs. Merrill Hutchinson and also studied for three seasons in New York city.

The lovely selection, "One Fine Day," was beautifully rendered by Mrs. Clarence Wall, accompanied by Mrs. J. B. McNelly.

Mrs. D. F. Stevenson, made a talk on the cultural development of Japan, calling especial attention to their teachings of morals. An interesting statement of Mrs. Stevenson's was that the outside pages of the Japanese newspapers are entirely devoted to reading matter on books, while the inside sheets carried the sensational items.

Mrs. Norman Sharp, chairman of the market committee of the club, reported the opening of the Municipal market and urged the members of the club to make it the most successful market in the country. When Mrs. Sharp was elected president of the club, she addressed the members with a word of appreciation, saying that she was cognizant of the great confidence and trust being placed in her by the members, as their leader for the coming year, and with the same cooperation and assistance given to the splendid women who preceded her she felt confident that the work could be carried on successfully.

Mrs. Sharp was presented with an exquisite basket of flowers from Mrs. Ernest Lee Rhodes, who was one of Mrs. Sharp's first co-chairmen of the market committee.

Mrs. Richardson announced the club song as "Peace Be With These Walls," and it was voted to have copies printed, in order that it may be sung at the club meetings. The words are by Mrs. Douglas and music by Mrs. Wright.

The membership chairman, Mrs. W. D. Williamson, announced two new members welcomed into the club, Mrs. Fred A. Jones and Mrs. C. B. Davis.

Police Bureau.

Mrs. Richardson announced that the women's police bureau had been established, which the club had been working for, and would function immediately.

Mrs. Richardson asked that a few moments be given in loving remembrance of a member of the club, Mrs. Hugh McKee, who was so recently bereaved.

A resolution was offered through Mrs. Hamilton Douglas that the club extend its appreciation for the wonderful art exhibition to be placed in Atlanta and a letter be sent to Mr. Haverty and the committee bringing it here, which was adopted unanimously.

Mrs. George Hinman announced a membership campaign for the American Federation of Art and told something of its work. Miss Nell Van Hook called attention to the beautiful art exhibit by the Atlanta club art gallery and urged the women to view it while at the club.

Mrs. J. A. Carlisle announced the woman's club restaurant for this week at 132 Peachtree, opposite the Candler building, and invited the women and their husbands to visit the cafe at lunch-time each day. Mrs. Carlisle also announced a postponement of the home economics meeting until May 21.

As chairman of the nominating committee, Mrs. Carlisle stated that Mrs. Richardson was asked to serve the club as president another year, but declined on account of other duties. Mrs. C. K. Ayers paid a beautiful tribute to Mrs. Richardson's splendid work of the past year, adding "Well done, thou good and faithful servant." Mrs. Ayers announced the trip to Florida arranged by the City Federation of Women's Clubs and the fifth district of clubs and urged the members and their husbands to take the trip. Following this appeal, Mrs. Richardson made an earnest appeal for Tallulah Falls school. She announced the dedication of the memorial to Woodrow Wilson, to take place a week from next Sunday.

Mrs. Otis Poundstone announced the essay contest in the junior high school and urged the members to go before the board of education Tuesday to ask that the opportunity school continue as a part of the public school system. The garden party by the Americanization division will be postponed until May 21. The Junior Red Cross present was announced for May 21.

The Half-Time Wife

BY VIOLET DARE

CHAPTER 24.

Concerning Lolita.

Mrs. Vale dined at the Atwood's that evening.

It seemed odd to Suzanne that the woman would care to come into her home, knowing that her presence there would be resented. But Mrs. Vale was, if anything, more at ease than Suzanne. She embraced Lolita, called her her darling little daughter, tried to kiss her, and then, with a blushing bridegroom, whereupon he quite forgot his manners and was exceedingly rude to her.

After dinner, Dick, who was still under the doctor's care, went off to his room. Lolita wandered about, trying to read, watching the others play bridge, and finally curling up in a far corner. It was rather stupid for her, and Suzanne tried to give up her seat at the bridge table to the girl, but Geoffrey objected so strongly to her plan that she remained where she was.

"She ought to have her own home."

poor child," she remarked sympathetically, Curtis Leland, who was the fourth at the table, heartily agreed.

"No young married couple ought to have to live with other folks," he declared. "That's all wrong. Take you two," he added, to Geoffrey and Suzanne. "You had Dick and his brother here with you—not here much of the time, but in your home, nevertheless, I think they should have been somewhere else."

"Oh, they're dear boys, and we liked having them," protested Suzanne, she had always feared that Geoffrey would think she resented having his two wards with them.

And now you just couldn't let Dick feel that he was being shoved out of his home when he's not well, surely," Mrs. Vale cut in. "The dear boy—he doesn't look at all well. But of course having Lolita with him cheers him so—and feeling that he hasn't the responsibility of keeping a home of his own is such an aid to recovery."

"Nevertheless, he ought to have his own home," insisted Leland. Geoffrey said nothing.

"Well, of course, the children are going south just as soon as Dick is a bit better," murmured Mrs. Vale sweetly. "It will be time enough to think of what they are to do about living quarters when they return, won't it?"

"Oh, I think it's always well to plan ahead," answered Leland.

Geoffrey smiled; Suzanne, glancing up, caught his eye and smiled too. She did not quite understand this duel between Linda Vale and Curtis Leland; obviously, there was something behind it, something that Geoffrey understood, and which amused him. She sighed; since she had become Geoffrey's wife, so many things of this sort had bobbed up, about which everyone else seemed to know, but which were Greek to her.

Later, when Mrs. Vale and Leland had gone, she asked Geoffrey about their argument.

"Oh, Leland always argues with Linda," he answered, with a yawn. "He doesn't care what's the cause of the argument, he just likes to keep it up."

"Well, I suppose Dick and Lolita ought to have their own home," Suzanne went on, thoughtfully. "What do you think?"

Geoffrey's reply was quite indistinguishable. It might have been "Yes," "No," or neither.

How nice it would be, thought Suzanne, to have a husband who would talk things over with you. Of course Geoff was a celebrity, he had the coming political campaign on his mind, and he didn't like the idea of Dick's being married. Perhaps he couldn't be blamed for not wanting to discuss the question.

But he doesn't want to discuss his affairs with me," she told herself almost resentfully, as she undressed. "He talks those over with Mrs. Vale, even now, though he knows what she is. It's got so that if I want to tell him anything, I'll have to get it broadcasted; he does listen to the radio once in a while, anyway."

And she went to sleep, thinking about the curious enmity between Mrs. Vale and Leland, and wondering what it was the latter wanted to say to her.

Tomorrow—Below the Surface.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Dried Clothes.

It is wise to remove clothes from the line as soon as they are dry. They collect dust and frequently tear in weak spots when caught in a very high wind.

From Blanket to Quilt.

When the blankets begin to wear a durable more or less unsightly, put one over the other, cover with a dainty sateen and tuck here and there. You will enjoy this pretty and warm quilt.

Just a Little Extra.

Make a large meat loaf—it is delicious cold next day. Slice it thin and put in a sandwich with a slice of Bermuda onion, which has been covered with olive oil for a half-hour before the sandwich is made.

When Store Buying.

When buying a new gas range be careful to select one with the oven on the side where it will not obstruct the light from the burners. Consider the lighting, both day and night, of your kitchen before buying the stove.

Former Atlantan Describes African City of Kairouan

Mrs. Martha Goode Anderson, prominent Atlanta woman and writer of note, who sailed early last fall for an extended stay in Europe, will return home in June, accompanied by the trio of lovely young girls whom she has chaperoned during the winter, and among whom is Miss Margaret Massengale, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. St. Elmo Massengale, of Atlanta. The party is now traveling through Africa and the following excerpts were taken from a recent letter in which Mrs. Anderson writes interestingly of the cities, people and customs of the country:

Kairouan, April 1.—It is something indeed to have seen one of the "four Gates of Paradise," as this Mohammedan city is called. We left Tunis early in the morning, motoring through a barren, rugged country over which swept a bitter wind, making us hug our wraps close, and be glad for our comfortable, closed car, and reached the "sacred" city in the late afternoon. Stopping at Elfidrville, with its pretty French houses, we lunched at the modern, clean little hotel, always a surprise in this African land and yet nearly always to be found. On the way out of Elfidrville we motored past the vast olive orchards of the French owner who has planted 90,000 of these lovely trees and watched the soft gray leaves blowing gently in the wind. Camels, slow footed and heavy laden, passed along the route, being driven by Arab drivers in picturesque brown burnous and constantly calling to the slow-going passenger: "Dush," "dush," which being translated from the Arab into our more familiar language means "Hurry up! Get a move on!"

Kairouan looked exquisitely white and clean at the end of a long, perfectly straight road, as smooth as engineering skill can make a road, and these wonderful roads, all through Africa, due to French engineers, are as much a marvel as are the clean, nice hotels one finds everywhere. Nothing could be stranger than Kairouan with its white, stucco houses, each flat-roofed and exactly the same height as the adjacent one, so that it is possible to step from one roof to the next and thereby walk almost over the whole town.

Oldest Capital.
As you know Kairouan is the oldest capital in "Ifrikiya" (Africa) and one time held more than a million inhabitants, now it is like a village, but a "sacred" village to which pilgrimages are made by faithful Mohammedans as they are to Mecca. Besides the splendid mosques and the strange little shops, or shops, there is nothing of interest. In the long ago days the city was indeed so sacred that neither Christian nor Jew was allowed to enter, but the entry of the French troops after the French conquest, "defiled" the holy place, and any one can now visit it.

Arkansas Lady, Learning from Parents, Says Black-Draught "So Easily" Corrected Her Constipated Condition.

Farmington, Ark.—"I have been keeping house for nineteen years," says Mrs. O. J. Guilliams, of near here, "and since I began housekeeping I can't remember a time when I haven't used Black-Draught, for my parents used it before me."

"I had suffered so much from constipation and, finding that Black-Draught corrected this condition so easily, I just keep it and use it. When I get dizzy and everything goes round, I know then that I must take Black-Draught. It regulates me, my head doesn't feel so heavy and I get all right."

"My husband has found it so beneficial for sick headaches. Poisons which may cause great pain and much danger to your general health are re-absorbed by your blood when not properly eliminated. Don't neglect your health."

Thedford's Black-Draught acts on the liver and stomach, bringing on elimination, and, by regulating the action of the liver, when it is torpid, helps to drive out the poisons and tends to leave the digestive organs in a condition of healthy activity.

Keep Thedford's Black-Draught in the house. Take it at the first sign of constipation, or liver trouble. Millions use it. You should.

BLACK-DRAUGHT
LIVER MEDICINE

Ostrich eggs and bright colored glass balls filled with earth brought back from Mecca by faithful pilgrims, hung from the rafters and made little spots of color in the gloom. Pilgrims, their shoes left outside the door, came from afar to make this visit to the sacred Islam temple, moved slowly about, as beggars, too, whose pleas for "susa" followed us persistently. Without, the rain splashed in torrents, making the lovely marble courtyard with its strange cisterns and wonderful pillars of porphyry, marble and stone, many brought from ruined lovely Carthage, which once smiled so fondly on the sea, at no great distance from Tunis, almost impassable. Climbing to the top of the charming minaret was not as easy as it sounds and certainly the muezzin, or priest, who climbs these long, long stairs five times a day to give his call, "Allah, Allah, Illa Akbar," which reminds "the faithful" of their prayers, had my profound sympathy. Perhaps, though, he is insured and does not need it!

Pray Five Times a Day.
After I learned that the Mohammedans enter their mosques five times a day to pray, I no longer wondered at what seemed to be their idleness or laziness, and rather wondered that they accomplished anything else at all. Women do not enter the mosques for prayer as do the men, though in the lovely mosque of Sidi-Okbar there is a little enclosed space which they may enter by a private door, and pray, unseen, by the devout outside. Just outside of this little enclosed space are three slender pillars of granite, very close together. If one is light enough to squeeze one's body between these pillars, one's entry into Paradise is assured. Alas for us, although we tried, none of us could. I am afraid, therefore, that Atlanta will be the nearest we shall reach Paradise, at least by this Mohammedan route, and certainly far, far away from Atlanta seems now indeed "Paradise."

One of the glories of Kairouan is the "barbers' mosque," which lies among low hills and is surrounded with the strange white tombs of saints and Moslem cemeteries. This mosque is dedicated to the barber of Mohammed, who was not only the prophet's barber, but his friend. Buried with this important personage are three hairs from Mohammed's head, which, however, we did not see, taking Achmed's word for it. The barber's mosque is now a school for little boys who are taught to read the Koran. As they all read out loud, their sing-song voices are heard for some distance away, like the droning of a great hive of bees.

Splashing back through the rain which still pelted down, we reached the hotel to find our rooms lighted with candles, shining "in the dark," as the great poet has said, "Like a good deed in this naughty world of ours." It was good to sit by a small blazing fire in the writing room and here we found Mrs. Stevens Wallace and Mrs. Nell Bigby Wilkins, of Atlanta, shivering beside it, just as we were doing. They had arrived the day before and left early the next morning, so that we did not see them again.

Arab Dancing.
Although at Biskra it had been impossible for us to watch the derbies dance their terrible cruel dances, thrusting swords into their cheeks, biting their arms until the red, red blood flowed furiously, and biting flaming bits of wood, which they also held against their bare, brown bodies, I sat entranced in the little Kairouan Arab cafe while an agile Arab danced and charmed hideous serpents which wriggled and writhed as the rhythm of rum and fife held them enthralled. Margaret's chair was so close to the small platform that each snake came quite to the edge to look inquisitively at her, while the rest of us sat at safe enough distance, though we were glad when the Arab chanted his weird, monotonous refrain and the cobra turned his ugly, swelling head away. We "inched" our chairs away, for none of us felt like having even a charmed cobra crawl into our laps and investigating our cups of strong, black coffee which fortified us. This caused the greatest amusement to the hooded Arabians all about us who kept calling out words of encouragement, one benevolent even offering to put his shoulder to tell her not to be afraid. I noticed, though, that our Arab dancer carefully placed a heavy stone on one of the cobra's tails. One Year To Live

BY JOHN HUNTER

CHAPTER XXIX.

Her decision made, Elsie consulted not even Brunel but set about her task of furnishing her chambers without regard to cost and with the utmost expedition. She had the drawing-room redecorated in pink and silver, very delicate shades against which she set rosewood furnishings. There were no pictures, and the furniture was sparse, so that the room looked bare, except that the rich blue carpet was piled here and there with cushions—cushions all colored like flame, like the rainbow; cushions downy and soft, round, hexagonal, square.

It was these cushions, arranged in heaps, so that one might lounge on them with ease, that gave the room that touch of comfort of which its bareness deprived it. The lighting was indirect, and it filtered from round the edge of the carved ceiling, its rays made pink by colored glass.

The dining-room Elsie found more easy. She provided no table. All meals would be taken on the floor. There were divans set about, low, in the eastern fashion, and little wheeled stools. The walls of the room were paneled in ebony, relieved by thin white molding. The ceiling was red, rich red, with two great hanging lamps from Persia providing all the illumination.

The floor, left bare, was polished, and spread with gorgeous rugs. There was not a chair in the room, nor yet a picture. In fact, Elsie had neither pictures nor prints, nor mural decorations of any kind throughout the place.

Her bedroom was white. White paneled walls, white ceiling, cream carpet. The bed was white and very low, with arched head and foot, carved richly. The dressing table was a white spinet, its top profuse with flowers. The only lighting was on this spinet, and that was golden, with gold silk shades over the lamps.

Her maids were easy to get, for she was willing to pay high wages and she chose two pretty girls, much alike, blonde. For the manservant ultimately she had to seek the aid of Brunel, who secured her a giant, six feet two, black as coal, and dumb.

During this time she received many presents, and among them were two Alsatian wolfhounds and a little mongrel, whom she called Neppo. The manservant had informed her that his name was Louis, but that being far too ordinary she rechristened him Babu, and informed him of the fact.

Each fortnight she ran down to the coast and saw Martine, who was slowly gaining strength and would ultimately, according to the opinion of the famous specialist, whose name Lapierre had given to Elsie, be fit to undergo the operation which might be the means of restoring her to an active part in life.

CHAPTER XXX.

The months drifted on. La Phalene was now more than famous. Offers had poured in on her from London and New York. She could have danced in Buenos Aires for a nightly salary such as a great prima donna might ask. Yet she refused them all, inclining only for a moment towards the New York offer, but ultimately refusing to accept it; for still, deep down within her, she clung to the hope that Kendrick might one day return to Paris looking for her.

She still danced that dance, which had made her name—The Valley of Hope Forgotten—but now it was augmented by other, more exotic movements, and was only performed by special request.

She had set out to gather about her an army of admirers, and in this she had been successful beyond her wildest dreams. If safety lay in numbers, the glory of Lolette was as nothing beside the effulgence of this new star.

Money passed through her hands like water rushing swiftly over the bed of a steep stream. There were four cars. Her chauffeur, in his gray and mauve was the smartest in all Paris.

Yet, despite all this riotous expenditure, despite the lavish display, the costly gowns, the wonderful furs, money went every month to the account of Martine Duchanier, thousands of francs, tens of thousands of francs, money beyond Martine's wildest dreams and expectations.

For Elsie, in one respect, at least, kept her head.

These men who gathered about her, wealthy, admiring, luxurious in their habits, paid for every smile, for every favor she designed to bestow on them. It was the Count Mordac himself who gave her the Hispano Suiza, with its gray and mauve bodywork to match her chauffeur's uniform, its satinwood interior panels, its luscious upholstery.

Brunel remonstrated with him on the gift, for the two had drawn together again somewhat during this period.

"That woman," said Brunel, "astounds me. Why did you give her that car, my friend?"

Mordac shrugged his shoulders. "One pays tribute," he answered ambiguously.

Brunel smiled. "In the hope that there may be an investment locked up, eh? Fear this, my friend. She is beyond us, that woman. She is on a great flood of her own losing. It is a game for fools."

Brunel tried to read his eyes, but failed. He told himself that Mordac did not give cars for the sake of giving them.

In fact, probably Mordac alone read Elsie truly. He alone realized that she withheld herself from everybody. Yet the many would disagree. He had seen these things, on a lesser scale, before. The lustre of La Phalene's fame would wane. Then the followers would drop off so that the few would be left. Of those few, assuredly the Count Mordac would be one.

And Brunel would be another, for Brunel stood by always because he must.

Mordac wondered if, at the last, it would be as at the first, a struggle between himself and Brunel.

Of that third man who had intervened in the beginning—the American, Kendrick—he did not think; he had forgotten him. Yet he filled La Phalene's thoughts.

So the thing crescendoed. It became shrill and devouring. Elsie, having started it, found herself gripped in it remorselessly, beyond all hope of escape. Luxury was piled on luxury. Entertainment succeeded entertainment. The newspapers were filled with her doings, the dinners, her moods.

The whirlwind was at its height. The sowing was broadcast, scattered, and only God knew where the seeds were falling.

It could not last. Something must break. It could not last.

CHAPTER XXXI.

It was this period that Elsie met those two men whose advent meant as much to her as that first night when she danced and brought Paris whirling.

She was introduced by a wealthy Frenchman as one of her informal dinners. One was Felice Donatelli, an Italian from Milan, wealthy, of ancient lineage, dark and swarthy, handsome. The other was from the east—Elsie never knew his real nationality, except that he was apparently a great man in his own country—and his name was Ahmed el Zeyed, whom everybody called Ahmed. He had a virile, sleek movement about him which spoke of burning sands and horsemanship.

Like the rest of these men he loved her. It was Ahmed who first declared it. He had taken her for a drive in the Bois, during the heat of the morning, and they had pulled up in the shade of the spreading trees. They were alone, for Ahmed's chauffeur had not accompanied them.

Ahmed said: "Have you ever visited the east?"

Elsie confessed that she had not. "It is wonderful," he said, "it is unchanging, eternal. It is as it was when the Christ worship trod the earth, and as it was when the pyramids were reared and the gardens of Babylon hung over the still waters."

There was a magic in his voice which painted it all for Elsie.

"At home," continued Ahmed, "a hundred waves do my bidding. When I ride out men go before me to clear my path. I am great in my own land, lady. He leaned closer. "Would you share my greatness, my slaves, my palace?"

She tried to smile, for she had never seen a man so dreadfully in earnest.

"Monsieur! You ask me to leave all this—Paris, the summer-time, my work?"

He nodded gravely. "I would wait, for a smile from you, I would wait forever. For a kiss from your lips, I would die, and think the kiss cheaply bought."

She laughed, uneasily. "I do not wish you to die, monsieur. You would mock me and the love I have for you?"

She shook her head, very earnest and sincere. "Not at all, monsieur. It is a compliment I can never appreciate fully. Be assured of that. And now—shall we drive on?"

He sat back, away from her, his eyes having lost their light, and dimmed pitifully.

"You do not care," he said. "Here—all are your slaves. You can afford to listen with amusement to the love declarations of a son of princes and pass him by."

"It is not that. It isn't really. Only—I should like to drive on a little further. The sun is creeping round this way. The shade will soon be gone."

He nodded, and suddenly laid a sinuous brown hand over hers. "One day," he said quietly, "one day I shall speak again to you of love, and then I hope you will listen. For I love you. It is love that demands all, that gives all—love—my white flower from the west—love."

He lifted her hand and kissed it. She was strangely stirred, and could find no answer for him.

Only she told herself that among all these men about her this one was a gentleman.

They drove home.

The other—Felice—was different. He gave Elsie presents, many of them costly and rare. Each morning her table was heaped with flowers, and bedecked among them was his monogrammed card.

He took her to dinner once, before her show, and made love to her across the table, driving her to the theater in his car, and trying to kiss her as they went.

She resisted him and prevented him, and he made a joke of it. Yet there was an air in his eyes which frightened her.

But now she had acquired the habit of playing on the feelings of men, and in Felice she saw a fit subject for her endeavors. For Felice was obviously not sincere except in his passionate desire for her.

So Elsie, confident in her powers, found in Felice a new toy, led him on, pulled the strings while he danced, and watched him with a blasé amusement. And Felice spent his money and his time and told himself that in the end he would win her.

Yet, had a hint of what the future held for her and Felice and Ahmed been told, Elsie would have banished them both from her sight, affrightened; for into the hands of these two men was placed the task of smashing

FINDING THE GAY BACHELOR LIFE TO BE A DELUSION AND A SNARE ANDY IS BEGINNING TO REALIZE WHAT A TREASURE HE LOST WHEN MIN WALKED OUT—

THE LONG SIEGE OF LONELINESS IS MAKING THE OLD GUMP FORFESS CRIBBLE LIKE A LOAF OF STALE BREAD—

WELL, MIN—I GUESS IT'S ALL OVER BETWEEN US—I GUESS YOUR OLD ANDY'S LOST HIS LIL PAL ALL RIGHT—NOBODY CARES NOW IF HE GETS A HEADACHE, OR WHAT TIME HE GOES OUT OR WHAT TIME HE COMES IN OR WHETHER HE COMES IN AT ALL OR NOT—NOBODY CARES FOR POOR OLD ANDY NOW—

IF SHE'D JUST LOOK IN THE WINDOW AND LET ME SEE HER FACE FOR A SECOND—IF I ONLY KNEW SHE WAS ALL RIGHT—IF I COULD ONLY BE NEAR HER TO PROTECT HER—BUT HERE I AM WAY UP HERE AS HELPLESS AS A FLY IN AN ICE BOX—IF SHE'S ONLY WRITING NOW—OR CALL UP—BUT IT'S MY OWN FAULT—IT WAS COMING TO ME AND I GOT IT—I KNOW SHE DOESN'T CARE FOR ME ANY LONGER BUT IF SHE EVER MARRIES ANOTHER GUY AND HE STARTS TO ABUSE LITTLE CHESTER—

MIN!

MIN!

WELL, MIN—I GUESS IT'S ALL OVER BETWEEN US—I GUESS YOUR OLD ANDY'S LOST HIS LIL PAL ALL RIGHT—NOBODY CARES NOW IF HE GETS A HEADACHE, OR WHAT TIME HE GOES OUT OR WHAT TIME HE COMES IN OR WHETHER HE COMES IN AT ALL OR NOT—NOBODY CARES FOR POOR OLD ANDY NOW—

HE CAN BE ALONE—HE CAN BE STARVING OR DYING—GET INDIGESTION FROM COOKING HIS OWN MEALS—NOBODY CARES—WHAT DOES THAT BUNCH AT THE CLUB CARE FOR ME? I'M A GREAT GUY WHEN I'M BUYING THEIR MEALS AND LAUGHING AT THEIR OLD JOKES—BUT WHEN I'M IN TROUBLE AND NEED A FRIEND WHERE ARE THEY?

IF SHE'D JUST LOOK IN THE WINDOW AND LET ME SEE HER FACE FOR A SECOND—IF I ONLY KNEW SHE WAS ALL RIGHT—IF I COULD ONLY BE NEAR HER TO PROTECT HER—BUT HERE I AM WAY UP HERE AS HELPLESS AS A FLY IN AN ICE BOX—IF SHE'S ONLY WRITING NOW—OR CALL UP—BUT IT'S MY OWN FAULT—IT WAS COMING TO ME AND I GOT IT—I KNOW SHE DOESN'T CARE FOR ME ANY LONGER BUT IF SHE EVER MARRIES ANOTHER GUY AND HE STARTS TO ABUSE LITTLE CHESTER—

Pageant To Mark Opening Of Brunswick-St. Simon Road

Brunswick, Ga., May 12.—(Special.)—In connection with the opening of the Brunswick-St. Simon automobile highway July 11, women of Brunswick are arranging a historical pageant which promises to be one of the most beautiful and elaborate ever given here.

The committee which has the pageant in charge is working on historical data and is very encouraged over the responses being received from those invited to participate, it is said. The pageant will begin with the coming of Spanish soldiers to the Florida colony in 1565. The earlier episode will be done by high school students, and will be a most elaborate affair, including all of the acts of that period—trading with Indians, etc. The act will carry with it wigwams, canoes and other features of an appropriate nature.

The Oglethorpe episode will be elaborate and on a large scale. This will include scenes at the court of King George, where the grant was obtained for the colony of Georgia and again when Tomichichi, his adopted son, accompanied Oglethorpe to England and was received in court. The John and Charles Wesley episode will be full of thrills. A chorus of trained voices will sing some of the hymns which were written by the Wesley brothers, and which have been sung for generations. The Scotch Highlanders, who settled at St. Ives, afterwards Darien, will be put on by the people of Darien.

Colonial episodes and the period of the war between the states and reconstruction will be staged in a colorful and charming manner. The Sidney Lanier period is also in for its share of attention and will take the form of a fantasy, in which the spirit of the works of this Georgia poet will be carried out. The prospect and the future of Brunswick and St. Simon's will be pictured by beautiful girls in costumes representing commerce, education, transportation, etc. Music and dancing will be a feature.

U. S. IS MENACED BY MANY BLOCS, BARRETT CLAIMS

Macon, Ga., May 12.—(Special.)—In his charge to the United States grand jury today, Judge Barrett of Georgia here today, Judge William H. Barrett called attention to what he termed a "dreadful menace" to the peace and stability of the country existing in congress. He predicted that sound and fundamental principles of government were being destroyed by a few class or bloc groups more than it is entitled to.

"Not secretly, but openly and avowedly, with increasing numbers, we have the formation of the railroad bloc, and the last I have heard of is the woman bloc," said Judge Barrett. "All of this means nothing more than the fact that these men are gathered together for the purpose of selfish aggrandizement; that they stand there willing to disregard principle, to disregard national needs, to trade with anybody for anything, provided only their particular group can get what they are fighting for, but to get something that is more than their fair right."

Judge Barrett pointed out how utterly justice would fail if the grand jurors themselves were divided into simple and divided into groups, and when a man came before them treating him according to whether he belonged to a particular group, as well as form opinions. His charge was an appeal for good citizenship.

During the day Judge Barrett imposed fines in 18 cases, most of them for violation of the prohibition law. Penalties amounting to $3,200 were imposed.

MILL BURNS, 2 BOATS DAMAGED IN FLAMES

Brunswick, Ga., May 12.—(Special.)—Fire which originated here about 8:30 tonight in the planing mill, the largest establishment of its kind in Brunswick, completely destroyed the mill, together with two boats, and caused a loss of $25,000, according to estimates of the insurance company. A. M. E. OFFICIALS WAR ON FLAPPERS IN CHURCH SERVICE

Louisville, Ky., May 12.—(Special.)—Women with bobbed hair or wearing sleeveless dresses are not eligible to office as deaconesses, stewards or class leaders, according to a resolution adopted by the A. M. E. church, of Louisville, Ky., at its annual conference, Monday, at the session of the A. M. E. general conference, Bishop W. H. Heard, of Philadelphia, Pa., an ex-convict from Georgia, presided over the evening session and paid high tribute to the white people in the south for what they have done to help the negro along in the church and in the community.

Rev. Charles G. Woodson, of Washington, D. C., negro historian, delivered an address and urged the negro to preserve his history. The Rev. Dr. M. W. Clark, of Texas, delivered the message and advocated organic union between the three negro branches of the Methodist church.

A bill offered by T. M. White, W. A. Williams and Professor Williams, of Atlanta, to give lay members equal representation in the church, brought a storm of opposition from the ministers of the general conference, declaring that such representation would destroy the usefulness of the church.

The Episcopal committee recommended that three bishops be elected. The election of bishops and general officers will be held Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock.

A Self-Service Store Within Reach Of Your Easy Chair

"If you want a thing well done, do it yourself," says an old saw. Its corollary says, "If you want to be well served, serve yourself." The principle thus expounded is bringing self-service stores into existence all over the country.

People seem to like the self-service plan. The merchandise in these stores is systematically grouped and price-tagged so that one may spend as much or as little time as he desires in selecting his purchases. And another advantage lies in the low operating expenses which make possible lower-than-average prices.

The Constitution A-B-C Classified Section is very much like a self-service store which you patronize from your easy chair. Its merchandise and offers are systematically grouped in "1-2-3" and "A-B-C" order. A glance shows you what is in each department—and you don't have to wait for a busy clerk to get around to serve you these economical offers.

Take what you like—you will surely like what you take!

EQUITY ACTORS VOTE TO ACCEPT ALL TERMS

New York, May 12.—(Voting 1,000 to 1, the Actors' Equity association decided at a mass meeting today to accept the terms of the Managers' Protective association, a so-called "insurgent" group headed by the Shuberts, and to serve notice on the Producing Managers' association that Equity members in their theaters would strike on June 1.

The agreement with the new managerial organization provides that future theatrical casts shall be composed of at least 80 per cent Equity members and that all non-Equity members in a cast shall pay to Equity an amount equal to the dues of that association, which Equity may dispose of as it sees fit. This money, it is understood, will be devoted to charitable work in the theatrical profession.

About 70 per cent of the productions now running in New York are controlled by the Managers' Protective association.

The new agreement, which is for ten years, provides that arbitration boards shall decide all questions where there are deadlocks, that the probationary periods for dramatic productions shall be reduced from 10 to 7 days; that payment of awards of arbitrators shall be made within 10 days from decisions. The Equity group was to interfere in salary questions except in the minimum salary paid to the chorus.

Unless the remaining members of the old managers' association agree to the new contract, at least seven popular shows on Broadway will close May 31.

Woman Is Saved By Yowl of Cat As Ships Crash

New York, May 12.—(Courage and discipline shown by the officers and crew of the steamship Orca, safe-guarded the lives of all aboard when the steamer was rammed last Thursday night by the Norwegian freighter Forsanger in a heavy fog off Father Point, Quebec, according to the 44 passengers who were on the Orca.

Before the steamer docked here today the passengers presented to Captain Matthews and his crew a testimonial expressing appreciation.

With three of her sternmost windows and several plates above the water line store in the Orca came into port under her own power. The bow of the freighter struck the steamer on the starboard side amidships. A small plate below the water line was dented and a slight stream of water poured into the ship, but the leak was soon stopped with cement.

Mrs. Raymond Franzen, of San Francisco, one of the passengers, attributed her escape from injury to Bonzo, the ship's black cat. She said she was returning to her stateroom when she heard the cat yowling. Remembering the ancient superstition, she said, she went back to the lounge room, where a few minutes later the collision occurred. Her stateroom was badly damaged.

Immediately after the accident the 19 officers manning the emergency posts and the lifeboats were swung clear, but not lowered. The passengers were reassured and soon the Orca was again on her way.

COTTON TEXTILE PROBE ORDERED

Washington, May 12.—An inquiry into the cotton textile industry by the tariff commission was ordered today by the senate on motion of Senator Walsh, democrat, Massachusetts.

Business leaders of the industry were suffering a depression, adding that he did not think the situation resulted from importations of cotton. Senator Lodge, Massachusetts, the republican leader, joined in asking for the inquiry.

NEGRESS KILLS POLICE MATRON IN CELL AT JAIL

Wilmington, Del., May 12.—Annie Lewis, negress, accused of beating to death Mrs. Mary T. Davis, police matron in a cell in a station house here last night, was found today in a house on the east side of the city.

The negress, who is 23 years old, was arrested last night on charge of carrying a pistol and placed in a cell. Later in the night a woman brought to the police station a bunch of keys she found on a sidewalk near the station. They were identified as the matron's keys and an investigation resulted in Mrs. Davis being found dead in a cell and the negress missing.

Police then recalled having seen the negress calmly walk out of the station house, believing she had been a witness called before the detective department and dismissed.

Mrs. Davis, who was 67 years old, had been beaten to death by being founded against the iron sides and the floor of the cell.

FELDER, JARNECKE AND MEANS INDICTED AGAIN

New York, May 12.—A superseding indictment was returned by federal grand jury today against Gaston B. Means, former special agent of the department of justice, Elmer W. Jarnecke, his secretary, and Thomas B. Felder, his attorney, charging attempts to bribe former Attorney General Daugherty, United States District Attorney Howard and others to halt prosecution in the $175,000 stock fraud case against the Glass Casket company and the Cramer System.

The indictment, which Special Deputy United States Attorney Todd said was similar to one returned April 27, charged the trio accepted $55,000 from Samuel Safir, an official of the companies, in four payments between September, 1922, and December, 1923. It also is charged that Means, Jarnecke and Felder conspired to obtain from federal prosecutors certain documentary evidence which was to be used in the prosecution of the Cramer System.

Seventeen officials of the two companies were sentenced to prison after conviction on charges of conspiracy to defraud in a fake stock promotion scheme.
